INTRODUCTION

India's poor, especially of those in the working age, are on the move in search of work. Although most of them travel to cities for jobs in construction, manufacturing, services, evidences show that people in large numbers are migrating to the farm sector in rural areas also. Census 2011 shows a large increase in migrant population from 309.4 million in 2001 to 449.9 million in 2011. As per the report of the National Sample Survey (NSS) 2007--08, approx. 28.3 per cent of the workforces in India are migrant labours. Migrant labours boost Indian economy by meeting human resources where it is required.<sup>1</sup>

At the same time, they are always the victims of exploitation and human rights violations, and it is hardly given serious attention as it require.

Bihar, Madhya Pradesh, Chhatisgarh, Andhra Pradesh, West Bengal and Rajasthan have a higher share of seasonal migrants .

According to census 2011, there were 45.4 crore migrants in India.

The movement of migrant labour can further be classified into intra-state and inter-state. As per Census 2011, there were 39.6 crore intra-state migrants and 5.4 interstate migrants. Approx. 8% intra-state migrants migrate for employment and 49% for marriage; whereas, 25% inter-state migrants migrate in search of work where male population accounts for 50%.<sup>2</sup> It can be understood that the main objective of inter-state migration is to find a suitable employment opportunity so that a worker or labour can meet the financial requirements.

As per article 19(1) of the Constitution, all citizen has right to reside and settle in any part of the country which ensures that any person can migrate to other places to fulfill his or her needs. Migration of labour is very important from the perspective of socio-economic development of India.

Over the period of time, the Government has recognized their concerns and framed welfare schemes for the protection of their rights.

States have in place policies and programmes to address vulnerabilities of migrants to different degrees of efficacy and success.

The impact of the lockdown in India is equal and acutely felt by migrants of all categories, whether seasonal, long-term or circular labourers. It exposed, perhaps for the first time, the full magnitude of labour migration and the nature of different types of migration. COVID19 has centrestaged the need for a comprehensive policy for labour migrants is more apparent now than ever before. Corona/COVID-19 pandemic in almost all the countries, there is a renewed focus on migrants and migrants' rights across the globe. The migrant workers comprise 164 million, which is 4.7% of the global labour pool (ILO, 2020).

migration is already a major part of inflows/outflows of population from states and sectors in India, we also try and understand how states have been responding to inward or outward migration through appropriate policies and programmes.

However, migrant labours are still struggling to assess the rights and entitlements meant for them despite many efforts from the Government and civil society bodies. The gaps were largely exposed during the last Covid crisis in the year 2020-2021, where labour community faced one of the difficult phases of their life. Their rights and entitlements were largely undermined and many labour support agencies or helplines came up to bridge the gap between the state and labour. The Labour support agencies or helplines provided great services to the migrant labours during the period. There were many cases where entitlements, forced labour, traveling back to home, payment issues, etc were dealt with successfully by these agencies during the lockdown period.

Jesuit organizations, who have been engaged in many social and welfare activities for more than a century in India, also provided great services to migrant labours in India during the Covid crisis. Their continuous experience of struggle and growing future concern gave birth to the idea to extend exclusive support to migrant labours. It was further realized that there is a need to address the continuous issues of migrant labour in more of an organized manner. In February 2021, Jesuits Conference of India established Migrant Assistance and Information Network (MAIN) to address the issues of migrant labour. MAIN, India is a collaborative venture with partner organizations and stakeholders like institutions, alumni's, formation houses and provinces. The Distress Migrants will seek assistance from MAIN by dialing a toll-free number. The team at Central Hub would receive the calls and transfer it to the respective state hubs for further actions. At present MAIN has envisaged 12 states, Karnataka, Kerala, Tamil Nadu, Andhra, Telangana, Jharkhand, Bihar, Chhattisgarh, MP, Odisha, West Bengal, Goa and Delhi<sup>3</sup>.

It was further felt that there is a need to have a comprehensive document on migrant schemes of the states in order to properly inform people and address the issues of migrant labour. Preparation of the document was done by CDO team by collecting relevant schemes from the online resources of the states. The available online schemes-related information was studied, shortlisted, and important information were collected as per the format of the document.

This document consists of Government migrant schemes of 8 states namely, Kerala, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Maharashtra, Goa, and Delhi. All these states were major destination states for migrant labours from the source states such as Bihar, Jharkhand, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, etc. It is really important to know the Government provisions of these destination states for the migrant labours.

Total 8 schemes for Kerala, 2 schemes for Karnataka, 6 schemes for Tamil Nadu, 11 schemes for Goa, 8 schemes for Andhra Pradesh, 6 schemes for Telangana, 11 schemes for Maharashtra, and 13 schemes for Delhi were documented in the document which largely covers the financial entitlements and related services specially meant for a labour community.

This document would help all the migrant labours and stakeholders to increase awareness about the migrant schemes and address their issues in more appropriate ways. The gaps identified in delivery of the schemes can be further taken up as an advocacy plan with the concerned states through partners and collaborators. Hence, the document would bring much needed insight on the services for the migrant labourers.
